

ST. LOUIS

Approved For Release 2001/03/02 : CIA-RDP70-00058R000100

Circ.: e. 387,398
S. 460,501

Front Page Edit Page Other Page 14

Date:

ALLEN DULLES SAYS REDS SEEK TO INFILTRATE

CIA Head Warns They Still Use Subversion and Contrived Civil War, However.

PHILADELPHIA, May 5 (AP)

Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, said last night the Communists hope to infiltrate legislative systems of the free world, but still will use "the weapons of subversion and of contrived civil war."

In a speech at the University of Pennsylvania Law Review dinner, the CIA chief added: "It is well to recognize the danger. There is no ground for panic."

Dulles said Americans seem reluctant to heed official statements by political leaders in other countries, particularly when these statements appear bombastic or unrealistic.

But, he added, Hitler's Mein Kampf, written in 1924, was the "blueprint for the Hitlerian policy."

"Much the same can be said about the writings of Lenin and Stalin. We were too inclined to laugh off their theories of world revolution and of the inevitability of conflict between Communism and the free world."

He said Communists seek to take over "our parliamentary governments, and to use the freedom which our system of government gives to destroy all vestiges of that system."

Other Techniques.

"Of course, I do not wish to leave with you the impression that even for the immediate future the Soviet proposes to limit their subversive techniques to the single policy of infiltrating Western parliamentary systems and then taking over and destroying these systems."

CPYRGHT

CPYRGHT

"The weapons of subversion and of contrived civil war will still be used wherever they think they can get away with them. And there will be no abandonment of the use of strikes and such forceful tactics, especially through labor unions."

Dulles added, however, the Kremlin leaders have indicated what their plans are.

"It is up to the leaders of the free world," the official added, "working together as allies and friends, to help uncover and to frustrate this Communist design which otherwise could threaten to wreck the free institutions of many countries and even endanger our own."

View on Anti-Stalin Drive.

Earlier, in a television interview, Dulles attributed the current anti-Stalin campaign in Russia to two things:

"First, I think they (Soviet leaders) felt Stalin were taking risks which would involve the Soviet Union in war. Today they are not ready for war."

"Second, there are pressures within the Soviet Union that got so strong that I think they felt they had to do something to persuade the people that the old terrorist campaign of the past, the old NVD terrorism, was going to be done away with. I don't say that it is going to be done away with. I think a lot of this is sham because many of the men who are carrying it out worked cheek and jowl with the terrorists for 20 to 30 years."